In-Home Companion Dog, Brine

Brine was adopted in January as an in-home companion dog for a family whose son has Autism. Mom Marcy writes, "Our son has Autism and is non-verbal, and we felt a companion dog would be a great fit for him to have a 'friend'. We welcomed Brine (now Bella) into our home and have been ELATED with her.

She has literally made our family complete. She waits for my son from school, and they have a love fest every day when he gets home. She nuzzles him, lays on him, and kisses him until he giggles and helps to calm him down.

She is so extremely patient with his wonder of trying to 'figure her out', something a person could never do for him, and she LOVES every minute of it.

Circle Tail found the perfect match for our family, and I hope that others have this same opportunity. It has changed HIS life for the better!
